A woman in her 30s is standing in the reception area of a medical clinic. She has long blonde hair and is wearing a red jumper. She is shown from the waist up, and is looking straight at you. She has an annoyed expression on her face.	[Noises of a crowded waiting room]
Looking directly at you, she rolls her eyes as she speaks.	I don't see why I need to wear a mask. It's not like I'm here because I've got COVID... They don't make a difference, anyway.
The expression on her face becomes more aggressive and her volume increases.	I just want to have my appointment and not be bothered by your shitty rules.
She leans into you, putting her weight on her front foot.	I have rights.
She relaxes back onto her back foot and then stares you down, rolling her eyes.	You know you're a sheep?
She shakes her head.	What are you on some kind of power trip?
She steps back towards you.	What right do you have to make me do anything?
She looks directly at you, then slowly nods her head.	Do you enjoy forcing us to do this? I bet you do, bet it's the only power you have.
She leans forward again, then moves to walk away.	Well, you're pathetic. I'm not wearing your fucking mask.
